Success Stories

What are your favourite success stories?

Handy 35:

Some people take short ice baths for their health, but never for more than a few minutes. In fact, doctors say it's dangerous to spend more than fifteen minutes in one. But that hasn't stopped people trying! Wim Hof tried on different occasions between 2009 and 2013. Then Josef Koeberl spent 2 hours 30 minutes in an ice bath. That was in September 2020, but in December 2020, Romain Vandendorpe lasted 2 hours 35 minutes.

Flowerpower:

Felix Baumgartner jumped from a balloon nearly 39 kilometres up in the sky. He started to plan the jump in 2010 with a team of scientists and finally made it in 2012. Cameras recorded the event and millions watched it on the internet. Baumgartner jumped further and faster than anyone before him. He reached a speed of 1,357 kilometres per hour, faster than the speed of sound. Two years later, in 2014, Alan Eustace jumped even further, with a distance of 41 kilometres.

R2D4:

Chloë McCardel is a swimmer who has swum from England to France 44 times. In 2013, she tried to swim the 110 miles from Cuba to Florida, but she had to stop after getting hurt in an accident. However, she didn't give up and she tried another difficult swim in 2014. This time she swam 74 miles from one Caribbean island to another. This was further than anyone else had ever swum with only the simplest equipment.

MetalMike:

Ultra-runner Dean Karnazes runs really long distances. He ran for his school in 1976 before stopping for fifteen years. Then, in 2005, he ran about 350 miles without a break. He wasn't fast, but he ran a long way without sleeping or eating! He completed it in 80 hours 44 minutes. For a few years this was the longest anyone had run for. However, in 2013, Kim Allan from New Zealand ran around a park for 86 hours 11 minutes with no sleep.

Penny 159:

Roger Bannister was an athlete famous for running the "four-minute mile". In the 1950s, nobody thought it was possible to run a mile in four minutes. In 1952, Bannister competed in the Olympics in the men's 1,500 metre race and he came fourth. Bannister was disappointed and he almost gave up running, but he carried on. His goal was to run a mile in less than four minutes and he achieved it in 1954. Nowadays, it's common for athletes to run a mile in that time.
