A different kind of holiday

*If you like fresh air and seeing new places, why not go on a cycling holiday?
In this article, we'll help you plan the perfect holiday on two wheels.*

A

Firstly, decide whether you want to travel on your own or with someone else.

If you go by yourself, you can do exactly what you want, but it can be more fun to travel with someone else. If you'd rather share the experience, make sure you choose the right person. You'll need to get on well with them and, of course, they'll have to enjoy cycling!

B

You'll also need to decide where you want to go. There are plenty of great destinations for cycling holidays, but they're not all suitable for everyone. For example, the Atlas Mountains are a popular choice, but you might find it hard. If you haven't got much experience, choose somewhere like The Netherlands. It's good for beginners because most of the country is flat.

C

One of the advantages of cycling holidays is that you can usually avoid crowded tourist destinations. However, you should still think about accommodation when you're planning your route. If you're travelling out of season, you might find accommodation easily. But in the school holidays, you might not find anything if you haven't booked.

D

You'll also need to think about your equipment. If you've already got a bike, you can use that but, if you haven't, you can usually rent them quite cheaply. You should also think carefully about the things you'll need. If you pack too much, your bike will be too heavy. Only take enough clothes for a couple of days because you can wash them and wear them again.

E

Lastly, don't go anywhere without travel insurance, which is a type of document that protects you if you have an accident. In some countries, you have to pay your hospital bills yourself and travel insurance is also useful if somebody robs you. The insurance company will replace the things that are stolen. It isn't usually expensive and you'll be a lot more relaxed if you've got it.
