

Crime and Punishment

450 BC

Twelve Tables Written.
Roman laws were called the 'Twelve Tables'. They were written around 450 BC - these were basic rights for all Roman people and decided what they should and should not do.

Roman Punishments

Punishments in Roman Britain were severe. The punishment you received depended on how much money you had. If you were a slave, you had no rights at all and the punishment would usually be death, by many different, awful means - or to be forced to become a gladiator. However, if you were a noble, you were often saved from death and were exiled instead.

Anglo-Saxon Punishments

When a village wanted to find a criminal, they would call upon everyone else in the community to find them. This was called a hue and cry.
If an Anglo-Saxon committed a crime, they could choose oath-keepers who would swear that they were innocent. If they couldn't find enough oath-keepers, they would have to do a trial by ordeal.

Tudor Punishments

Crime - mainly stealing - was widespread in the Tudor times, as many poor people could not afford to pay for increasingly expensive food. Punishments were harsh in belief that it would stop others from committing crimes.

AD 43

The Romans Invade Britain.
People accused of committing a crime were taken to court to be judged guilty or not guilty. In Britain, the job of finding a criminal was down to the legionaries.

Roman Law

The ideas that the Romans started are still used in the British justice system today. These are the use of a court, a judge, a jury and a lawyer.

AD 410

Anglo-Saxon Period
The different villages and communities were divided into ten men called tithings. They were all responsible for each other's behaviour. If a man in that tithing committed a crime, it was up to the other men in that tithing to bring him into court, and if they did not, they would face punishment themselves.

Wergild

Wergild was a payment system used in Anglo-Saxon times to settle disputes between the criminal and victim or victim's family.

Police Force

The police force was first introduced in London in 1829. Sir Robert Peel introduced them as part of a campaign to improve public law. These policemen were called 'Bobbies' or 'Peelers'. They wore long, blue coats and tall hats and their only weapon was a truncheon.

Highwaymen

Georgian Highwaymen

Highwaymen became a greater threat to people in the Georgian period because trade was increasing and there were more wealthy people who were travelling on the roads. There were also many areas of forest and countryside where highwaymen could lie in wait. The pistol had been invented in the 17th century which made it easier for highwaymen to threaten travellers.

Dick Turpin

The most famous highwayman was called Dick Turpin. He was born in 1705 in Essex. He was captured and hanged in 1739.
