

Grammar: Present Tense

When we describe something that's happening now, we use the present tense. That means we ensure the active verbs in the sentence show that the event is happening now.

e.g.

I am happy.

He walks to the shops.

They play on their guitars.

Can you change these sentences into present tense?

1. They went to the shops.

2. The film star signed autographs.

3. Did you see the tree in the distance?

4. I will go to the cinema.

5. She ran down the street and crashed into a lamppost.

6. He vaulted over the fence and sprinted towards the gate.

7. "Are you ready?" he asked.

8. The book was so much better than the film.

9. I couldn't believe he was standing there.

10. I ate the entire cake and then went back for more.

Now, write a short paragraph about what you wish you were doing now, using the present tense.

Grammar: Present Tense - Answers

1. They went to the shops.

They go to the shops.

2. The film star signed autographs.

The film star signs autographs.

3. Did you see the tree in the distance?

Do you see the tree in the distance?

4. I will go to the cinema.

I go to the cinema.

5. She ran down the street and crashed into a lamppost.

She runs down the street and crashes into a lamppost.

6. He vaulted over the fence and sprinted towards the gate.

He vaults over the fence and sprints towards the gate.

7. "Are you ready?" he asked.

"Are you ready?" he asks.

8. The book was so much better than the film.

The book is so much better than the film.

9. I couldn't believe he was standing there.

I can't believe he is standing there.

10. I ate the entire cake and then went back for more.

I eat the entire cake and then go back for more.