

Dice Challenge Teacher Notes

This revision game can be used as a starter activity or as a plenary to assess students' understanding of the topic so far. You may wish to use this activity as part of a revision lesson leading up to an end-of-topic assessment or GCSE exam.

Students can either play individually or in pairs.

Students take it in turns to roll a pair of dice. They will find the question they should answer by looking at the number on first die to find the row and the number on the second die to find the column. Students should write their working and answers on the corresponding answer sheet. Students can use the answer sheet to self- or peer-assess their work, either as they play or at the end of the activity.

You could challenge students to answer as many questions as possible in a given time or award a prize for the first student to correctly complete a full row or column on their answer sheet.
